Gothic has returned, gracefully.

Southern California homeowners, always searching for ways to add light and space to their homes, have re-discovered the elegance of Gothic interior design elements. Shedding its 19th century morbid connotation, the recent Gothic design resurgence celebrates the verticality and ethereality that Gothic architecture was originally intended to venerate.

In designing and fabricating this Shady Canyon, CA kitchen in an authentic Gothic aesthetic, Architectural Furnishings by Tempo (AF) emulated the painstaking craftsmanship of medieval artisans. AF created functional cabinet doors with graceful pointed arches and the unmistakable rosette that characterizes the Gothic charm. The complementary stiles are hand-carved with flourishing floral motifs.

Like the awe-inspiring cathedrals, this Gothic kitchen imparts the same sense of lightness, beauty, and grace.
